

Amazing Meetings

Materials: Amazing meeting handout, pencils, clipboards

Procedure: (Awaken Enthusiasm) This is a good activity when starting with a new class or beginning a series of nature explorations. It gives the students time to talk about how they feel about nature and provides a baseline for the group.

- 1) Simply give each student a handout, clipboard and pencil.
- 2) Let them mingle and take turns asking each other the questions found on the sheet. For example, James may ask Peter, "Have you ever held a bird in your hand?" To which Peter might respond, "No." James could then continue to ask Peter, "Have you ever caught a fish?" And this time, Peter responds, "Yes!" James will then write Peter's name in the appropriate box and then answer a question for Peter.
- 3) Each student can only provide one positive answer for another interviewer. This ensures that lots of mixing and questioning happens.

AMAZING MEETINGS!

Find someone who...

has eaten a bug!	has gone camping for more than a week.	has held a bird in their bare hands.	has caught a fish.
wants to be a biologist or naturalist.	has gotten lost in the woods.	has lite a fire using a flint skick.	rescued a wild animal.
has shot a bow and arrow.	has gone swimming in the pacific ocean.	was not born on PEL.	has a favorite animal. What is it?
has slept outside without a tent.	has gotten lost.	has a bird feeder at their home?	has dreamt of being a wild animal.
