

Nikki Kelly

Nikki was born and raised in Halifax. A graduate of Dalhousie University in 1999 and 2010, most of her career was spent working in the Emergency Department. There she focused on special populations like the frail elderly, frequent flyers, and people experiencing homelessness. Like many, Covid gave her a unique opportunity to explore new career options. After dipping her toe in Community Practice, each foot has now landed firmly in a dream job. She currently splits her time between Medical Assistance in Dying (MAiD) and Mobile Outreach Street Health (MOSH).
